Helping Children Who Are Blind (Early Assistance Series for Children With Disabilities) Sandy Niemann, Namita Jacob

Children develop faster during their first five years than at any other stage in their life. And while children who are not visually impaired learn to move around, communicate, and understand the world naturally as they interact with people and things they see, children who are blind need extra help learning how to rely on their other senses - hearing, touch, smell, and taste - to explore, learn and interact with the world around them. The simple and engaging activities in this book can help parents, caregivers, teachers, health workers, rehabilitation workers, and others help a child with vision problems develop all his or her capabilities. Topics include

- assessing how much a child can see
- preventing blindness
- helping a child move around safely
- how to include learning activities in daily work
- preparing for childcare and school
- supporting parents of blind children
- and teaching common activities like eating, dressing, and keeping clean
