Living With Low Vision Justin Oldham

Living with low vision can be difficult. There will be many challenges to meet, followed by just as many rewards once those obstacles are overcome. Quite a few resources are available to help the visually impaired thrive in today's rapidly changing world. This book provides an overview of the problems faced by the partially sighted and the blind. Brief descriptions of agencies, private organizations, and other support groups are also included to help family and friends relate to the visually impaired. How do the blind work in an office or play outdoors? What is the best way for a sighted person to help someone who can't see? These and many more questions are addressed, with a foreword by State of Alaska Division of Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor SueEllen O'Connor, MS, CRC.
